Tax Pro Niagara Temporary Relocation Expenses for Tradespeople

NAME: _____ Tax Year: _____

Starting in 2022, construction industry workers who needed to temporarily relocate for work will be able to claim up to $4,000.00 per year to help with the cost of their relocation expenses. In previous years, you couldn't claim your moving expenses for temporary relocations if you didn't move more than 40km.

- You cannot claim the cost of commuting to a work site if you didn't move there, even if it was far away
- You can't claim anything you were reimbursed for

To be eligible to claim your moving expenses, you must meet the following conditions:

- You're a tradesperson or apprentice -You relocated within Canada - You relocated for more than 36 hours
- You only relocated temporarily to work or continue working at a construction site or activity
- Your temporary residence is at least 150km closer than your main residence to the work site
- You have a separate residence for yourself or family (if applicable) during the time you relocated for work (meaning your temporary residence isn't your only residence)
- You stayed at the temporary residence for the entire duration of the job

What IS included?

- Temporary accommodations to live near the work location
- One round trip from your main residence to the temporary relocation
- Meals purchased while travelling for one round trip from your main residence to the temporary relocation
